

My project is on the i'iwi. The i'iwi is native to Hawaii. They were used as material for a king's cape. The i'iwi is now endangered. You might have to get a permit to be by a i'iwi. The i'iwi feeds on berries. The i'iwi is red and black and has white lines on its tail. The i'iwi is also endangered because of alien species like the mongoose. The i'iwi is part of the Honeycreepers species, which is now either extinct or endangered. Most of the time, the i'iwi is fenced in an area where the government blocks off. The i'iwi is in the Honolulu Zoo.
